ABOUT ME

I am a dedicated and proactive individual currently pursuing advanced studies in economics and international relations, with a focus on economic policies and business strategies. I hold a Bachelor's degree in Economics from Tashkent State University of Economics and Ural State University of Economics, and I am a highly motivated and results-driven professional with a Master's degree in Economics from Tashkent State University of Economics and a further Master's in Education from Indonesia. Currently, I serve as the Head of the IT Department at Xalqaro Nordik University, where I lead a team focused on technological solutions and support for academic and administrative processes. Throughout my career, I have gained substantial experience in various roles, including research and administrative positions in prominent organizations. I have worked as a project manager and business development specialist, where I contributed to the improvement of business operations and strategic planning. I possess a strong command of both Russian and English, which I use to communicate effectively in professional environments. My academic and professional experiences have honed my skills in problem-solving, leadership, and cross-cultural communication, which I apply to each project I undertake. I am eager to further develop my expertise and contribute to impactful projects in the future.
